PROSPECTING FOR TIN.

The Black ore Hunters Call in Large Numbers to see Our Samples.

The Miner would like to ask Mr. Walter Wells the charge d'Affairs of the Government Assay Laboratory at Belleville how he knew that so many prospectors of the Lake of the Woods wanted to see samples of tin ore? When we received those samples they were duly acknowledged in The Miner and the very next morning the prospectors began to arrive. They were in the office all that day, the next day, and they are coming yet. We are sorry now we did not borrow a hotel register and have all the prospectors and mining men write their names in it, so that we might publish a list of those who are hunting for black ore. The comments too of the different men as they examined the ore specimens would if written down, make a very interesting article. Some of them expressed surprise; others said the samples were just like the stuff they had on "X McQ 113," and one man said there was miles of that stuff on Big Island. We hope we are not giving away a secret in thus designating the spot where tin is to be found, but we do not feel very uneasy on this score as the prospector referred to has been too long in the business, to mention the location of his finds until he has had surveys made.

HAROLD NELSON COMING.

Harold Nelson the well-known romantic and classical actor is booked to appear for a week, in the Hilliard Opera House, beginning on Monday, September 1st. Press notices that have reached us from eastern Canada are all lavish in their praise of the Nelson Company who have stayed as long as four weeks in one city. The Port Arthur Chronicle referring to the appearance in that town, of Harold Nelson and his coup any says:-

The high appreciation the public has of strong play bills is amply evidenced by the continued large attendance at the town hall. Each evening this week has seen the house filled to witness the productions of the Nelson Co. under the management of Mr. T. E. Cornyn, who, by the way, has become one of the most successful theatrical managers visiting the west.

That Mr. Nelson himself is duly appreciated was shown last evening when a crowded house greeted him in happ's international reputation for greatness in the character of Richelieu. Certainly we here cannot hope to see the cardinal so truly portrayed by any other player who comes this way. On the whole Mr. Nelson's support was good; noteworthy being Mrs. Cornyn as Julie de Mortimer, Miss Proctor as Francois, and Mr. Yule as Joseph. Messrs. Bruce and Garette, as de Mauprat and Buradas, were passably good.

Ingomar on Tuesday night was very enjoyable and heartily received by a large audience, in which were many who had seen Mr. Nelson in the character on his previous visit here.

On Wednesday night The Merchant of Venice was produced, in which the various characters were well represented.

"THE GREAT WHITE SILENCE"

The show given in the Opera House last night was one of the latest apologies for an entertainment that has ever struck town. The $10,000 electric display was a pure and unadulterated fraud, as nothing was shown but a very imperfect magic lantern arrangement, with a few worn out vioscope pictures at the wind up. Professor Parkes operated his stereopticon and lectured at the same time from the back of the house there being no music, nor no specialty of any kind to break the monotony of the 75 minute show. The Professor should have stayed in the Klondike.

AL 282.

Manager Enlaw brought into Port Arthur recently some very pretty specimens of quartz from the vein, taken out of the drift at the 200-foot level, says the Industrial Review. The richness of the ore did not need any assayer, as the gold was visible in it. The vein is not all of this very high grade, but there seems to be a considerable quantity of this kind of ore there. It is a narrow lead, not averaging more than 18 inches in width, so that one-half of the rock taken out will be wall rock, which may or may not carry paying values, and which probably will make somewhat of a reduction in the milling value of the dump.

Work at this property has been superintended by T. R. Jones, of the Tip Top, during Mr. Enlaw's recent illness, but the latter is now able to resume full charge of his duties at the mine.

AHN AND HIS MACHINERY

Instructions are received from Toronto to let Mr. Ahn use the tools.

Mr. Theo. Breidenbach returned from a trip on the lake Saturday, and in conversation with a Miner reporter, said that the statement given out by a local sheet to the effect that Mr. Ahn did not take any machinery from Crown Point is false. Proof of this is in the fact, that he took a steam pump from the mine.

The particulars of the Baden-Powell deal are that Ahn was sent up here by the Smith pool, to buy an option on the claim from a Rat Portage, which cost $1,000, and then to strip and prospect the lodes in the interest of the prospective buyers. This is now being done, and there is no doubt in the minds of those who have seen the Baden-Powell that the property will show up marvellously rich. Messrs. Appleton, Partington and Forster were the original owners of this much discussed mining claim.

ANGLO-CANADIAN GOLD ESTATES

Highly satisfactory progress is being made at the Elizabeth mine, where the manager, Mr. Sullivan, is commendably deliberate about installing his milling plant. There is little doubt, however, that when once he has decided on the machinery it will be but a little time before the plant is up, as all the necessary preparations for installation are already made.

They are now sinking at the 240-foot level, a winze 100 feet away from the main shaft, and are in a strong vein with excellent ore. The fact that they have now got below the plane of faulting is a most encouraging feature, and it is extremely unlikely that any more trouble will be experienced in staying by their ore body—Industrial Review.

looked after in this respect when used in wet and upcast shafts. In the latter case the vitiated moisture laden air has quite as great an effect in corroding a wire rope as the mine waters met with in these districts.

SUES FOR A MILLION.

Lawyer R. C. La Vesconte, of Toronto, known here in connection with the Crown Point mine, issued a writ last Friday involving a million dollars' worth of mining stock. The writ was issued at the instance of C. H. Howland of Ouyahoga Falls, O. Howland is a mining expert and sues on behalf of himself and other shareholders of the Nickel Copper Mining Company, Limited, for a declaration that the transfer of large blocks of stock to certain director of the company and others is null and void and made without actual or adequate consideration. The defendants named are C. T. Ritchie, of Akron, O.; John Patterson, John Moodie, Hon. A. T. Wood, J. Turnbull, D. R. Dewar, J. D. Chénier and Fannie T. Moodie, all of Hamilton.

MORE U. S. CAPITALISTS.

Dominion Gold Mining and Reduction Co. Interesting American Capitalists.

Mr. M. A. Myers, of Warren, Pa., Mr. Jas. Hodge, of Big Stone Gap, Va., and Mr. C. P. Russell arrived here on business connected with mining. Mr. Myers is one of the capitalists concerned in the Big Master mine in the Manitowish, and his two associates are well known in American capitalistic circles. The gentlemen are here through the efforts of Mr. A. M. Hay, of the Dominion Gold Mining and Reduction Co., in whose hands are some of the richest grass root propositions and partially developed gold claims in the district. A Miner reporter interviewed Mr. Ellick, the resident manager of the D. G. M. & R. Co. this afternoon, who said his company were putting forth every effort to interest American capitalists in legitimate mining enterprises on Lake of the Woods, and that the arrival of these "well known mining men" was the outcome of those efforts. Nothing definite in the way of a deal is on at present, though we have no doubt that when they see the claims that the D. G. M. & R. Co. can show them, the American capitalists will most likely take a hand in our gold mining industry.

DEFENDS MR. FLAHERTY.

Editor Lamby, of the Industrial Re- view of Fort William, has taken up the cudgels to defend R. H. Flaherty, against the Fort Frances Times' ac- cusation of blanketing the country for the United States Steel Corpora- tion. Mr. Lamby says:—
 "The accusation is based on wrong premises. Mr. Flaherty is the last to say a word against the valuable Huron- locations, all he claimed was that nothing of value had yet been found on the Steep Rock lands, quite a dis- tinct proposition. His offer to the Huronite company was to take an option for the purpose of prospecting, and was refused by them, a subsequent offer being accepted from Mr. S. S. Curry, of Ironwood, Mich.
 As might be expected, Mr. Flaherty does not invite the public to lost around in his diamond drill house, but the sludge is open to any one, as it runs down an open trough to the lake, and can be taken away by the painful. Mr. Flaherty is working for people who find the ore and want it now. If they find anything that is worth work- ing it will be worked at once, and they are willing to pay a good figure to any- one who will prove or allow them to prove that they have a valuable iron deposit, and when it is found there will and can be no concealment.
 "If there is, as we believe, a good iron range in this country there will be plenty of it, more than one com- pany can grab, and it will be a dis- tinct benefit to the district if anyone, either Mr. Flaherty or another, can prove its existence beyond a perad- venture."

In Mexico an inhabitant or foreigner must have a permit from the local mining agent, which is indispensable before he can prospect.
 The United States mint gives gold coin for gold bullion, charging only for the copper necessary to make an alloy 900 fine, and a parting charge if the bullion is below 900 fine.
 There are forty-eight Lake Superior copper mining companies on which $38,761,000 has been paid in on assess- ments, which have never paid any dividends and some of them are out of existence.
 At the Lincoln mine, Satter Creek, Ont., the use of oil for fuel shows a saving of 30 per cent.; at the Onelma mine it is figured that oil at $1.50 per barrel is equal in economic value to wood at $1.50 per cord.
 Almost every day this question is asked: "Well how does the mining situation look to you?" Candidly, it looks pretty well. There isn't a sign of a boom anywhere, but the industry at large is in a very prosperous condi- tion.
 Bad management is responsible for more failures in mining than almost anything else. Bad management does not alter the value of the ore, and while it is responsible for the abandon- ment of many a good proposition, it is impossible for it to alter the values that are contained in the ores one iota.
 A Scotchman while travelling in America was one day looking at the statue of George Washington. "There" said the American, who was with him, "is a man through whose lips a lie never passed. That is more than can be said of any Scotchman." "Na, I suppose he wad speak through his nose like the rest o' us," was the reply.

THE NEW BISHOP.

The consecration of Archbishop Lethbridge as Bishop of the new diocese of Keewatin, will take place next Sunday morning in Holy Trinity church. The bishops present will be the Bishop of McKenzie River, the Bishop of Calgary and Saskatchewan, and the Bishop of Athabasca, the last of whom will provide, being the senior bishop. The choir will sing the an- them, "Now Are We Ambassadors for Christ." (Mendelssohn). The provin- cial synod of Rupert's Land will open on the following Tuesday. In the absence of the archbishop, the senior bishop of the province, Bishop Young, of Athabasca, will provide. It is said that the archbishop is sending his opening address from England, to be read by Bishop Ross.

THE CARE OF ROPES.

It cannot be pointed out to rope users too often that the life of a rope is largely dependant on the care taken of it. External wear and broken wires are evidences of duty performed, and can readily be de- tected, but internal corrosion, as well as showing indolent or careless treatment, is a hidden menace to life that can only be prevented by methodical and careful attention. Before lubricating it is absolutely essential to clean the rope thorough- ly and examine it for corrosion. It should then be thoroughly coated with a non-acid lubricant sufficient- ly fluid to find its way into the rope core. Ropes should be particularly of the Dominion Gold Mining and Re- duction Co., in whose hands are some of the richest grass root propositions and partially developed gold claims in the district. A Miner reporter inter- viewed Mr. Black, the resident manag- er of the D. G. M. & R. Co. this after- noon, who said his company were put- ting forth every effort to interest American capitalists in legitimate min- ing enterprises on Lake of the Woods, and that the arrival of these well known mining men was the outcome of those efforts. Nothing definite in the way of a deal is on at present, though we have no doubt that when they see the claims that the D. G. M. & R. Co. can show them, the American capitalists will most likely take a hand in our gold mining industry.

GOSPEL MEETINGS.

The large audiences that assemble each night at Victoria rink reveals the fact that the people of Rat Portage are interested in every effort put forth to raise the moral and spiritual stand- ards of the community. Evangelist Romig is proving himself to be a Gos- pel preacher. He is a firm believer in the Bible and delights in proclaiming its truths? His efforts, so ably assist- ed by Prof. Dawdy, cannot help but be a blessing to our town, and also Christians of every name can receive help and strength by attending the meetings.

It is to be hoped every one will avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the meetings. Meetings began promptly every night at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

A. F. JURY VISITS US.

Mr. A. F. Jury, of Toronto, the best known labor and Socialistic leader in Canada, whose work on behalf of the bettering of the condition of the labor- ing man is known to everyone, con- nected with a trade union, was in town this week on a visit to Mr. J. G. Gaudaur whom he has known for many years.

Since the Laurier government in- stituted a bureau of labor, Mr. Jury has been employed in various capacities for that government on account of his large knowledge of matters concerning the wage earner, and he is at present engaged to lecture in England on the industrial asp of affairs in Canada. He is just now returning from a trip west, and arrived here after visiting the Itany River country which he says is unequaled in Canada as a field for immigration.

No mine dies. They are often abandoned, even forgotten, but time surely brings the resurser. New processes are constantly being dis- covered, introducing greater economy in mining and milling. Mechanics win triumphs over gravity. This gradual upward tendency brings all properties back again to the rank of producers.

PLAYING WITH EDGED TOOLS.

The Keewatin Enterprise is a most some what of a newspaper. Its editor is neither a performer nor a spectator in the human comedy; he is a half way up the aisle, and in something is happening on the stage, he turns obsequiously to the audience and says: "May it please your worship." A scene is toward: he knows the editors of Rat Portage to voice opinions before worship. I, even I am an editor, but I would not fright your ships by saying anything. I can't lie, it is true.

But I will aggravate my voice so that I will roar you as gently as any suckling dove; I will roar you as gently as any nightingale. The editor of the Enterprise accounts their worship his subscribers with the fact that the Rat Portage editors are discussing a means of forming the boy who blasphemes elders, and the editor is so distressed that he considers he can't do to treat the matter as trivial, so assumes a satirical vein, to attract his readers' attention from their fear of being saddled with opinion of the subject. The editor of the Enterprise has never been of expressing an honest opinion simply "presents a wall" as the thinker says—a partition of reality. He is the antithesis of Mr. Sandon Paystreak editor, who has evidently laid out a line of honor for himself in which he has tried to dodge the exigencies and possibilities of every situation as born and develops before him. He is striving to emulate Uriah, to be nothing to be nobody, it must be confessed that he is leading admirably.

The editor of the Enterprise is he can go on doing this kind thing in his paper, without its having a deleterious effect upon his idealistic character he is mistaken. He will remember that every piece of writing he is guilty of when writing editorial leaves a smudge on his ideals, and that it only takes a year of such juggling with the pen balls the gods give us, before we have dropped and lost them all. Inverse is also true. Every one speaks or writes a noble sentiment, or the character of the writer is ennobled by. The great Christian philosopher, and even the pagan sages say this, but if we look around us

If young girls would look ahead it would sometimes save them from serious collision with the men they marry. It is here that ignorance is almost a crime. The young husband cannot understand it when the wife changes to a peevish, nervous, querulous woman. And the young wife does not understand it herself. She only knows that she is very miserable.

If ever there is a time when nature needs help it is when the young girl is adjusting herself to the new conditions of widowhood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It promotes regularity, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All womanly confidences are guarded with strict professional privacy. Write without fear or fee to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I will drop you a few lines to-day to let you know that I am feeling well now," writes Miss Anna Stephens of Belleville, Wood Co. West Va. "I feel like a new woman. I took several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have no headache now, no backache, and no pain in my side any more. No bearing-down pain any more. I think there is no medicine like Dr. Pierce's medicine. I thank you very much for what you have done for me—your medicine has done me so much good."

Prose and Poetry. DEAD CHILDREN. Deep in her eyes There is a look that does not live In any other woman's eyes. Nor in the eyes of any man. A wistfulness unsatisfied; A light that fades with years Yet never quite goes out; A light that warms And makes her beautiful; A mother of dead children, she Has in her eyes The pathos of earth's heritage Of loss The pity and the pain —William J. Lampton.

A GOOD PICTURE. Address by Mrs. Dignam to Toronto Women's Art Association. At a recent meeting of the Women's Art Association in Toronto Mrs. Dignam gave a lecture on "How to Learn to Tell What is Good in a Picture." Mrs. Dignam said that there was a time when none but the artist was supposed to be able to understand pictures. The processes of creating were enveloped in mystery. This age, intelligent and analytical, has clamored for understanding, with the result that few are the secrets not wrested from the once hallowed mysterious pale of the artists' workshop. Criticism is on the lips of everyone without hesitancy. Marvellous skill has been developed among our own townsmen in trivial criticism, the chief aim being not to find the good but to detect trivial faults. Missing all truth and purpose, taking no account of the excellences, in impetuous haste to find fault, it being a mistaken idea that fault-finding is the function of the art critic.

Studying pictures is like studying human beings. If we start out on a voyage to discover good we shall find it. In modern English prose there are, it is true, many lyrical passages, but they are always sandwiched apologetically in the midst of expository writing. The only separate prose lyrics that I can recall written in English are translations from another language, such as Mr. Andrew Lang's translation from Theocritus. I recommend that dear little book as an incentive to young writers of prose. It will embolden them to be merely lyrical, thus hastening the day when writers of prose shall be as specific and distinct as poets are now—London Academy.

A Strange Legend. In "The Book of the Bible" the Hon. T. F. Freeman tells the following amusing story apropos of accidents to workers. "Sir Henry Halford on one occasion—it was not a very clear day—was about to begin shooting at 1,000 yards and, thinking that the marker must now be ready for him to begin, asked him through the telephone, 'Are you all right?' The marker replied, 'All right, sir, in a minute, but, unluckily, Sir Henry took 'All right, sir,' instead of the whole sentence and removed the telephone from his ear. He lay down and fired his shot, and, oh, looking

WHAT BRITAIN DOES NOT WANT.
London Spectator Makes Some Biting Comments on Chamberlain's Speech.
"We look to you," said Mr. Chamberlain, "the young nations, the heirs of the future, to appreciate our position; to approve our policy; to give us your help, to enable us to meet the taunts of our enemies with the cheers of our children." There is but one attitude which Britain can adopt to these "sons of her house-hold." Lying ego, before we under-stand the true theory of English colonization, we talked of "dependencies" and "plantations," and tried to force young countries into the strait-jackets of imported constitutional forms. We were nervous about anything which might impair their close relationship with ourselves, not seeing that a perpetual state of pupillage is not the best mode to secure a child's well-being or affection. In those days we regarded the colonies from our point of view; now, when our eyes are open, we can look at them from their own. Much false rhetoric and foolish sentiment have been expended on this newly discovered colonial kinship, but no innuendoes can quite obscure the real grandeur of the conception at the back of all the drums and cheering. Our colonial policy is simple; we do not wish to impose any scheme of federation, any read-made links of connection; we wish only to see each colony prosper, for in the furtherance of its prosperity we see the surest promise of union. The wise father who seeks the well-being of his child does not ask him to remain always at home, or to follow the same profession, or to imitate him slavishly in dress and conduct. He desires the child to make his way in the world, and he helps him to this end, knowing that thus far closer ties of affection will be established than if he had coerced him into his own ways. When Canadian federation was first proposed, it was currently supposed that this new freedom would mean the loosening of the old bonds. It meant really the opposite, for no bonds are so weak as the artificially imposed, and none so strong as those naturally and spontaneously created by an independent people. Hence, much as we desire to see the colonies shaping directly with us the condition prospering and her sense of status as a nation. It would add to her own prestige, and at the same time it would lighten to some extent the burden upon Britain. It would mean an increased community of interest between the young country and the old, and it would add to the security of both. Some time—we hope the day is far distant—Canada may be called on to protect her southern frontier against the United States, or her Pacific seaboard against Russia. Her wealth is growing, her interests may soon conflict seriously with those of other powers, and her share in any scheme of Imperial defence may become a very vital one. If she offers to help in the work of the Empire, we believe that while in the present our hands will be strengthened, in the future she herself will be abundantly repaid.—London Spectator.

The Maimed Mechanism.
It would appear that one of the most dangerous of peaceful occupations is the seemingly innocuous one of attendant of a joiner's planing machine. At a hearing in a prosecution under the factory act at Hallifax recently a factory inspector told the court that when he took office he made it a point to try to discover an attendant of such a machine who had all his fingers. It was five years before he came across such a man. All the attendants of joiners' planing machines whom he had seen in the meantime had one or more fingers missing, which they had lost in the performance of their work—and that notwithstanding the fact that the men engaged in such work are aware of the danger and are careful.

Dealer—Why not?

Dealer—But, my dear sir, the price of a thing is not what is asked, but what is accepted for it.

A Broken Neck.
"Did you hear about the catstrophe down at the Browns' last night?"
"No. What happened?"
"Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the cradle and broke its neck."
"What the baby?"
"No, the bottle."

Ingenuity in a Flat.
Alice—What a lovely cosy corner, Maymie! Such a pretty corner!
Maymie—Isn't it? It's made out of five trunks and a bathos, seven pillows, two bolsters and an old piano cover.

till. I recommend that dear little book as an incentive to young writers of prose. It will embolden them to be merely lyrical, thus hastening the day when writers of prose shall be as specific and distinct a class as poets are now.—London Academy.

A Strange Target.
In "The Book of the Rifle" the Hon. T. F. Freemantle tells the following amusing story apropos of accidents to marksmen:
"Sir Henry Halford on one occasion—it was not a very clear day—was about to begin shooting at 1,000 yards, and, thinking that the marker must now be ready for him to begin, asked him through the telephone, 'Are you all right?' The marker replied, 'All right, sir, in a minute,' but, unluckily, Sir Henry took 'in a minute,' instead of the whole sentence and removed the telephone from his ear. He lay down and fired his shot, and on looking through the telescope to see where it had hit was horrified to see the marker with a perfectly white face staggering toward his shelter. He was intensely alarmed, and in a moment there came a ring at the telephone. 'What has happened?' Are you badly hurt?' 'No, sir, I am not hurt; but I had a bucket of spitwash between my legs painting the target, and you put a bullet into it and splashed it all up in my face!'"

A Poverty-Stricken Queen.
Partly owing to the fact that she was wedded to an avaricious king and partly because she was generous with the little money allowed her Elizabeth of York, queen of Henry VII., spent but a small amount for dress. She was very often in debt, and the sums she spent were ridiculously small. 20 shillings ($5) being the greatest amount expended at any one time. Her gowns were mended and turned, and new waists were made for them, as is shown by the record of bills paid to her tailor. These bills prove that she wore her clothes for a long time, for her gowns were obliged to be newly hemmed, and also that of thought a princess of the great house of Plantagenet, she wore shoes costing but 24 cents, which were decorated with tin buckles.

Real Indian Idols.
The images of the gods in India are not made by a separate caste, but the carpenters and masons respectively make the large wooden and stone idols set up in the temples, the pottery the clay idols consumed in daily worship and the braziers, copper-smiths and goldsmiths the little images in brass, copper, mixed metal and gold and silver that are always kept in private homes. The East Indians regard an alloy of brass with five other metals—gold, silver, iron, tin and lead, making, with the copper and zinc of the brass, a mixture of light metals—as a perfect alloy, and this is highly prized as a material for sacred images.

Palmerston and His Muscles.
Lord Palmerston died at his post two days before he was eighty-one, his faculties unimpaired and his physical strength little affected by his advanced age. A hidden without record a touching anecdote: A fortnight before his death he saw the old statesman come out of his London hotel early one morning, late as usual to breakfast, that he was dead, then came over the open valley, passed the house and took again to spot the strength of his muscles.

to learn to tell what is good in a picture." Mrs. Dignam said that there was a time when none but the artist was supposed to be able to understand pictures. The processes of creating were enveloped in mystery. This age intelligent and analytical, has clamored for understanding, with the result that few are the secreted mysteries of the once hallowed mysteriousness of the artists' workshop. Criticism is on the lips of everyone without hesitancy. Marvellous skill has been developed among our own townsmen in trivial criticism, the chief aim being not to find the good but to detect trivial faults. Missing all truth and purpose, taking no account of the excellences, in impetuous haste to find faults, it being a mistaken idea that fault-finding is the function of the art critic.
Studying pictures is like studying human beings. If we start out on a voyage to discover good we shall be rewarded by an ever increasing capacity to discover good. An increasing capacity to discern bad is innocent, good-natured exuberance of the careless observer who exclaims: "Isn't that just swell?" "That's lovely." "Just smell that rose." "I love kittens." It is much less hurtful than the carping, fault-finding critic, and preferable to the stolid indifference of the person who is afraid of showing ignorance if he let any emotion escape.
Pictures show the limitations of the artist, and cannot contain or suggest a greater thought than he can conceive. A serious student of pictures knows human nature, and will readily recognize the strenuous and uncompromising life of a Francois Millet; the frugal life and poetic musings of a Corot, the full, luxuriant life of a Rousseau and a Diaz, with their dream days of sparkling sunshine and humorous shadows; the quiet, pastoral life of Meuve, or the poetical abstraction of Chateaubriand.
Three classes of people study pictures—the pedagogues, who aim at being an honorary referee; the accumulative, gathering facts and incidents to retail them in conversation; and the honest picture-lover. Hunt says it takes as much love to criticize a picture as to paint it. "I hope our present conditions of criticism do not show any evidence of this." To be able to tell a good picture does not come naturally, but is the outcome of knowledge, association, study, thought, to be gained by seeing pictures, studying fundamental principles of construction, and last, but not least, learning to discover the motive and individuality of the artist. Art invents nothing; it just discovers, and this is what we are on a voyage of discovery.
Hammerton says: "The best results of culture is that it emancipates our minds from the effects of association and enables us to judge independently." or, in other words, enables us to have a beam of judgment.
Cruikshank devotes chapters to the difficulty of perceiving truth. Hunt tells us that all the world has a chromo enshrined as a standard, by which to run down pictures. He has met our critic. In France, a man is snubbed if he gives an opinion without knowledge. Hammerton says again: "Artistic motives are merely always a disguise of latent for mixed and artistic qualities. The most generally admitted quality is likeness; but the greatest truth to be considered first is construction, and that is the true basis of our study."

tation, studying all that has come down through the ages we find the constructive alone remains. Imitation is transient, likeness only interests for the moment. The Greeks created types which live to-day; likeness they buried in their tombs. Technicalities of composition, subject, color, tones, harmony, and construction were discussed and illustrated by fine carbon photos of great works of art, schools of art, epochs and periods being cursorily surveyed

Strange Effects of Extreme Cold.
Dr. Moss of the English polar expedition of 1875-77, among many other things, told of the strange effects of the extreme cold upon the candles they burned. The temperature was from 35 to 50 degrees below zero, and the doctor says he was considerably discouraged when upon looking at his candle he discovered that the flame "had all it could do to keep warm." It was so cold that the flame could not melt all of the tallow of the candle, but was forced to sit its way down, leaving a sort of skeleton candle standing. There was heat enough, however, to melt old shrapnel holes in the thin walls of tallow, the result being a beautiful lacelike cylinder of white, with a narrow margin of yellow flame burning on the inside and sending out many streaks of light like the darkness.

AUSTRALIA'S MISTAKE.

Would Not Have Been Known If They Knew Canada Well.

As to the Australian Commonwealth. Dr. Montague, in a recent lecture, said he thought that a great mistake was made by that colony through not knowing the ins and outs of the Canadian federal system.
It was supposed in Australia that the United States had the freest and best system. They called their confederation a commonwealth, and not a dominion. The divisions of the country, instead of being called provinces, are called states. Their Parliament is called the House of Representatives, and their Senate is elective. They frankly followed the United States model and avoided the Canadian example. The result is that any power not specifically conferred on the federal authority belongs to the State. In this Dr. Montague sees the germs of many dangerous diseases. The lieutenant-governors are appointed by the federal authority, but by the same imperial authority that appoints the Governor-General. The speaker found throughout Australia so many arguments in favor of this plan that he has grown reconciled to it, but Canadians generally will be disposed, by their own experience, to think that there can be no real and complete confederation while the federal authority is so largely nominal and is interrupted and intercepted and passed over in so many ways that we know not of in Canada. They have not in Australia the sound, smooth-working confederation that we have in Canada. Already Queensland talks of secession. In that province—or shall we say state?—there is a great cane sugar industry, made profitable by the importation of negro labor from the Solomon Islands. In its first session the Commonwealth has passed an educational test act, to be applied to emigrants, which will shut out these Solomon Islanders.
The cry is for "a white man's Australia." But Queensland's one great industry is menaced with destruction and Queensland's Premier threatens to withdraw from the Commonwealth. Dr. Montague does not see how the matter can be adjusted. The tariff law could not have carried, he says, but that it was yoked with this "white man's Australia" bill.
Canada is in high favor with Australian, especially since the men of both colonies have fought side by side in Africa. The people out there do not hesitate to say that the Canadians were the best soldiers who took part in the war. Last year, the United States said thirty million dollars' worth of goods to Australia, of which Canada might have supplied twenty-four million dollars' worth. Canadian goods have now a good-will preference in that market, and can have a tariff preference just as soon as the two Governments get

PLACING TEACHERS.

MODERN PLAN OF BRINGING TUTOR AND SCHOOL INTO TOUCH.

The Business of Supplying Instructors For Institutions of Learning Is Now Largely In the Hands of Special Agencies.

We have advanced a long way beyond the day when ambitious young Nicholas Nickieby found his only opportunity of becoming a teacher in Wackford Squeers' famous advertisement. "N. B.—Assistant master wanted; £5 annual salary." The fitting of schools with teachers and teachers with schools is now a distinct business, one of the myriads of later-day industries which flourish in the metropolis.

In the city are several agencies which do a large and remunerative business in furnishing institutions of learning with teachers. These agencies are in constant touch with colleges and normal schools on one hand and with the schools of the country on the other. The agency deals in teachers almost as a merchant does in dry goods. The agency studies its customers and knows the availability of the material it places on the market.

Providing a school with a teacher has come to be almost entirely a business transaction. The normal school or college is the factory which can be relied upon to turn out a certain number of teachers annually. The agency is the market place, and the agent is the salesman who disposes of the college product to the consumers, the ever increasing schools of the country.

One of the largest of the city agencies is on the second floor of a quiet old building not far from Union square. In the main office, which is carpeted and handsomely furnished, eight clerks are at work answering letters and applications from both prospective teachers and from schools. In an inner office the aspirant for the office of pedagogue is put through a series of questions to test his or her ability. On the result of this interview depends the classification in which his services are placed upon the market.

An idea of the modus operandi of the teachers' supply business as it is conducted was given to the writer a few days ago by the manager of this agency. It is usually in junior year at college that a young man decides upon his profession. If it be teaching, he opens a correspondence with the agency, of whose existence he is first informed by the college authorities. The return mail brings him a blank, which he fills out with answers to many questions.
He has to tell all about himself, from his religion to his ability in athletics. He also furnishes references which the agency carefully investigates. If they are satisfactory, the young man is invited to visit the agency during his next vacation. On that occasion the questions put to him are verbal ones. His manners, his bearing, his conversation, are all carefully noted and recorded. He is then informed as to what sort of a teacher's position he is eligible for, and his name is in the market.

So much for the history of the applicant's side of the transaction, but all the time that his eligibility is being considered orders are coming in for teachers.
Boards of education in various cities want teachers for public schools. City private schools need instructors. Rich men write for tutors for their sons, and there is a demand for governesses and kindergartners.

All the delicate questions of the adaptability of the applicant for the place must be decided by the agent. He brings it his task the result of years of experience, and on its successful performance depends
the receipt of future orders for teachers.
From both school and applicant the agent receives a commission as his profit on the transaction.

"I am not a teacher myself," said the manager of the agency spoken of, "and Sympathetic tribute.

 A Conservative member of the Dominion House, who knew the late Mrs. Ross well, said of her: "I have met many of the wives of our public men in Canada, and I would put Mrs. Ross as being the most typical of what such a woman should be. She was gracious; she had a presence without affectation; she was always sympathetic and motherly, and was a devoted companion and councillor of her husband. We often read of how the wives of the public men in the States rise in an easy way to the highest position there; this was very characteristic of Mrs. Ross.
 She was equal to any situation and was at home in them all. You would not quite say that she was a society woman in its narrow sense; she was essentially a social woman and a social centre, and commanded the respect of all, the love and affection of the many who came to know her well. Here was truly a lovable character. Her husband will be a broken reed by her loss; she nursed him, was his constant companion, and gave him that helpful sympathy which goes so far in making up a successful public man these days."

Gift to Toronto University.
 Mr. Richard Unsworth of Fergus, a graduate of the class of 1886, and at present in the custom service, has made, through the president, an interesting gift to the university. The donation consists of an argand lamp and a medical dispensatory. The lamp was at one time the property of Prof.
 W. H. Balmann, noted for his invention of luminous paint, and was given by him to Mr. Unsworth, assistant in his chemical laboratory in 1847. The volume above referred to is a copy of the complete English dispensatory, dating from more than one hundred years ago. It shows an interesting light on the condition of medical science at that time, as shown by its description of some of the extraordinary remedies then in vogue.

Quincy Remedy.
 In New Holland the women cut themselves with shells and, keeping the wounds open a long time, form deep scars in the flesh which they deem highly ornamental. Another indignant mutilation is made among them, when in infancy they take off the little finger of the left hand of the second joint.

His manners,
 his bearing, his conversation are all carefully noted and recorded. He is then informed as to what sort of a teacher's position he is eligible for, and his name is
 in the market.

So much for the history of the applicant's side of the transaction, but all the time that his eligibility is being considered orders are coming in for teachers.
 Boards of education in various cities
 want teachers for public schools. City private schools need instructors. Rich
 men write for tutors for their sons, and there is a demand for governesses and kindergartners.

All the delicate questions of the adaptability of the applicant for the place must be decided by the agent. He brings to his task the result of years of experience,
 and on its successful performance depends
 the receipt of future orders for teachers.
 From both school and applicant the agent
 receives a commission as his profit on the transaction.

"I am not a teacher myself," said the
 manager of the agency spoken of, "and never have been one. In fact, I could never quite understand why any clever young person wants to be a teacher."

"I suppose it is because teaching is an intellectual pursuit, and the number of vocations of that kind is not on the increase nowadays. It is certainly a fact that the list of men and women who aspire to be teachers grows longer every year, although much more is required of a teacher now than formerly."

"There was a time when the scholarly attainments and good moral character of an applicant were the only things considered. But that time is past. A teacher to succeed nowadays must have good manners and address. He must have savoir faire and be able to set an example to his pupils in culture and refinement."

"The ordinary pay of a teacher at the beginning is $600 per year. By an exhibition of special excellence in his department he can rise in the profession to be a principal or even a college professor. Although the work of the primary school teacher is infinitely more exacting he is not paid nearly so well as one who labors in high or even intermediate grades."

"For reasons which are incomprehensible to me women teachers are never paid as much as men for the same work. It is not at all unusual for us to receive a letter from some school requesting a teacher for some particular department. It makes no difference to us, the letter will say, whether you send us a man or woman or, but if a man the salary will be a third more than to a woman."

"Because a teacher fails to make a success in his first charge it does not at all follow that he is unfitted for the profession. In fact, I frequently send teachers to beginner's positions in the belief that the experience they will receive there will only fit them for the more serious work which will come later on."

"The one besetting sin of young inexperienced teachers is conceit. They think they know it all. To attempt to reason with them or to offer suggestions is worse than useless. The only thing to do is to place them under a year's contract as masters of a lot of boys in some distant school, whose chief ambition is to make the teacher's life miserable. If they do not lose their conceit during that year's wandering and annoyance, we decide that they are impossible, but they usually do and when they apply to us for a second engagement they are usually exceptionally competent." - New York Mail and Express.

The Chief Difference.
 "The superstition which prevailed in the middle ages is hard to understand in this enlightened era," remarked the optimist.

"Yes," replied the man who prides himself on being a chilly proposition. "It does seem surprising that the painters and sculptors and other fortune tellers of those days should have been so careless enough to advertise their business as they do now."

So sweetly innocent.

He had been to the boarding school to pay a surprise visit to his daughter, his only child. He had parted from her, proud to be the parent of such a handsome maiden, pleased with the innocence of budding womanhood. The principal accompanied him to the door.

"Madam," he said, with deep feeling, "I owe you much for the manner in which you have reared my child since she has been under your care. When I notice the contrast between that innocent maiden and some of the girls of her age who have not had the advantage of such strict supervision, I feel that I have indeed done wisely in placing her in your charge."

"And how proud you must be," said the principal, glowing with satisfaction, "to be the father of so large and devoted family."

Miss Ethel Buchanan, of Winnipeg, arrived in town Friday night on the steamer Keewatin, to visit Miss Hilliard.

Miss Clara Livingstone and Mrs. Davis are to play a mandolin and piano duet at Norman next Monday night.

The Bowling Club gave another of its summer dances last Friday night. The dance was attended by a greater number of guests than were present at any of their previous dances.

The Keewatin Band played a very cleverly arranged selection here Friday night, producing a remarkable imitation of the bagpipes. The alto, tenor, and bass horns were the drones, while the cornet played the Scotch air.

The town hall is greatly improved and is being equipped with opera seats. This was an excellent idea of the council as the hall is often used for public meetings, and such seating arrangements will also be appreciated by those who attend sessions of the council.

Mr. Jim Buxton who left here a few months ago for the Northwest Territories is now following the strenuous occupation of a cowboy on a ranch near to Lethbridge. In his letters to the town hall, he says life on the plains is the most worth living.

Mr. R. A. Haslam, the proprietor of the Kingston hotel, Winnipeg, is in town visiting friends. Mr. Haslam's card is as follows: "I am your cousin from the county. My name is Rubie."

Mr. J. A. Osborne, the W. R. Hearst Canada, was in town for a few minutes last night. The proprietor of the London Sub, Fort Frances Times and any River Gazette says he is going to buy out the Rat Portage News and put it in his newspaper trust.

Saturday night.
Mr. Geo. Donald and wife of the Winnipeg Business College, are camping at Keewatin beach.

Mr. Hugh Armstrong, M. P. P., spent last week end in town on business connected with the Dominion Fish company.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Milne and daughters arrived Friday night from the Mikado mine to visit friends in town. They left to return to the mine yesterday morning.

There will be a public meeting in the town hall tonight to discuss the question of purchasing the building known as St. Joseph's academy, for hospital purposes.

Mr. H. S. Crotty, of the firm of Crotty & Cross, Winnipeg, and who is interested in gold mines here, is spending a holiday on the lake.

Mr. Turner, of E. Hall's merchant tailor department, has left on a trip to his old home in the east. It is understood that he will start house-keeping when he returns.

If it is illegal for striking miners to meet to discuss their affairs, to consider ways and means of getting their share of the loot of the public, as Judge Jackson holds, why is it not also illegal for injunctional orders when coal mine owners meet to consider their plans for holding up consumers, lessening output, increasing prices and consolidating the coal trade? It would seem as if what were sauce for the goose were also fit sauce for the gander.

"Larger and devoted!" gasped the proud parent. "What do you mean?" "Devoted to each other," said the principal. "No fewer than seven of your sons have been here during the past three weeks to take her out and she is expecting another tomorrow."—London Tit-Bits.

A Terrible Passage.

A correspondent of The London Spectator tells how a young man came to confess to an Irish priest in London whose experience of the humors of his fellow countrymen would fill a book. "Well, my man," said the priest, "and how do you earn your living?" "I'm an acrobat, your reverence." The priest was unimpressed. "I'll show ye what I mean in a brace of shakes," said the penitent, and in a moment was turning himself inside out in the most approved acrobatic fashion in and out of the pants. An old woman who had followed him to confession looked horrified. "When it comes to my turn, Father," she gasped, "for the love of God, don't put a penance on me like that; it 'ud be the death of me!"
